To Whom It May Concern:

Andrea Meszaros has been a postgraduate student at Istituto Marangoni London Campus since October 2015, studying for MA Fashion and Luxury Brand Management.

During her time at Istituto Marangoni, Andrea has shown great ability and commitment in her studies, consistently achieving good grades as well as demonstrating academic rigour, creative flair and professionalism in coursework and industry-based projects.

Andrea has regularly participated in extra-curricular activities, such as her duties as Class and Programme Representative, where she has ably supported her peers in articulating their concerns and in working with staff to resolve them. In addition, Andrea took on the role of Scribe for the college's recent Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education (QAA) inspection – a major role which involved organizing meetings with the student body, as well as analysing and documenting their feedback. As part of this role, she was responsible for drafting the student submission for the QAA and attending QAA inspection preparation and actual inspection meetings – a substantial extra commitment that she managed extremely well, showing exceptional multi-tasking and time management skills.

In the Fashion Business-related sphere, Andrea has taken on extra project work too, taking part in a live project where students collaborated to devise innovative branding and communication strategies for a company about to launch in the UK market. Andrea's group won the one-day competition linked to this project, generating extremely creative proposals.

Andrea has excellent social and people skills, interacting well with tutors, peers and visiting industry professionals. She is well organised and tenacious in meeting targets and deadlines. Andrea is someone who believes in challenging herself to do her best at whatever she is undertaking and in consistently going the extra mile. I have no hesitation in recommending her.

Yours faithfully,

Dr Kirsten Scott
